copyright to aid us, and the Club's history initiatives continue with funds going towards an online museum offering, and a library containing images and text from every year of our incredible story.

A range of posters, greeting cards, and postcards have been produced along with a bespoke Jigsaw puzzle, in time for Christmas presents. These will be available from the Club Shop with all profits ring-fenced for future stadium developments.

We are continuing to raise funds for a statue to be erected outside the Stadium to commemorate the late Ronnie Moore MBE and his all-career service to Wimbledon.

WISH Managing Director, John Lynch, talks us through the process of how The Greatest Team artwork came about, a piece that can be viewed and purchased in the Club Shop.

A year ago WISH commissioned legendary sports artist Andy Kitson, who was well known across motor racing, but this was his first football-related offering.

The concept was to create a dressing room scene representing Wimbledon football club's whole history from 1889 to the present.

So Andy and I spent time bouncing ideas about how this could be achieved. We didn't want it to be reflective of any individuals, as that that would come later with The Hall Of Fame launch in 2024.

The original painting represents players in kits throughout our whole existence, it starts with the old Plough Lane dressing room on the left morphing into the current one in our new stadium, back home after three decades away.

Of course, our Womble mascots Wandle and Haydon are there, and if you look closely there are several less obvious nods to our heritage. The image will be enlarged and installed at strategic points around the stadium, ensuring that it's accessible to all home stands.

Andy kindly gave us 100%
